Money for Water from the Sun

Knalle School, the SSA-built school, in Bara – Sudan, urgently needs a rehabilitation of the life-giving water system. Your contribution can make a big difference.

Knalle school, a school amongst 3 villages, outside the town of Bara, in the middle of Sudan, was inaugurated in 1993 by the Swedish Sudanese Association (SSA) with the help of fundraisers.

The schools solar pump system has run its course after more than 25 years. Now we want to give the well a new life with a complete solar pump system consisting of a solar pump, solar panels, control unit, cables, hoses and others.

The students and teachers are eager to start a project for growing vegetables and plant trees with support from Swedish Sudanese and Sudanese Swedish Associations. It is about stopping sand build-up, about school children getting enough to eat and to be able to absorb knowledge, about teachers enjoying a reasonable working environment and it is about children and teachers getting the opportunity to successfully run a project together in a democratic spirit.

It is also about enabling the children to learn effective environmentally friendly growing methods supported by the Kordufan

University. Availing water will also allow the university to start a Rural Development Center within the school area that should support development in the whole Bara Region, in areas such as health, agriculture, forestry, animal husbandry, education, water and crafts.

But first Water is needed! This is a great opportunity for a positive development – help us assist the Knalle school grasp this chance with the help of the University of Kordufan. Help us change the lives of many people.

Every gift means so much!
